

READING SITES

If you are running out of reading material or would like to relax and listen to a story, these are some links to story sites for audio books.

Click on either of the links below to take you to the free website – audible books. There are a range of stories for all ages read by story tellers. You can even try listening in French.

Audible books.

<https://stories.audible.com/discovery>

Storynory is another free site with audible books including some longer stories which are split up into sections. It has stories for all ages. It's worth looking at too.

<https://www.storynory.com/>

Storyonline has links to videos of stories being told if you like looking at something while you are listening.

<https://www.storylineonline.net/>

You could also look at the BBC Schools Radio site which has a range of songs and links to all areas of the curriculum with some great ideas to try.

<https://www.bbc.co.uk/teach/school-radio/music-songs-ks1--ks2-page/znrj8xs>

WRITING SITES

With so many of you such amazing writers, you may like to share your stories on the web.

Storybird

Here is another website you may like. It has stories you can read but you can also write your own story and use pictures online to illustrate it too. Sign up for free.

Some parts are paid but others are free.

Link to the website with the link below

<https://storybird.com/>

You could also have a go at creating your own book on this site <https://www.mystorybook.com/>

This would be good for younger children too.

Other sites to try

A lot of sites are offering free access during this time and here are a selection of sites to check out where you can create your own books.

<https://www.storyjumper.com/>